

ORREFORS

Orrefors

The history of Orrefors is the story of how the simplest ingredients – lime, sand and soda – can become magnificent glass objects. Fueled by the forest, the artists and designers made Orrefors a global leader in glass.

First, they produced glass jars for preserved foods in nineteenth-century Orrefors. As social movements and the notion of “more beautiful everyday goods” took hold around the turn of the last century, artists Edward Hald and Simon Gate were invited to the glassworks. They promptly began making new objects with color and engraving. The results became popular worldwide through exhibitions, interior design and objects for everyday use. Before long, glass from the forests of Småland was incomparable: There is nothing like it! “Il n’y a pas ça!” exclaimed the 1925 World’s Fair in Paris.

More artists and designers joined Orrefors and the designs were refined and reconsidered. Hot glass contains infinite possibilities – for those who have mastered the skill. The glass made today is based on expertise generated over more than a century. The very best designers now continue to enchant the world with the brilliance and beauty of glass.

The story about the glass from Orrefors continues.

Aroma

Jens Josefsson

Launch date 2025-02-14

Few drinks can compete with the simplicity, refreshment and name recognition of a gin and tonic, . Although most often served as a highball in standard glasses, Aroma Copa Gin Tonic by Orrefors gives it the room and attention a proper G&T deserves. The glass is designed and developed in collaboration with Jens Josefsson – gin connoisseur and author of the book Swedish gin ("Svensk gin") – and features a generous balloon-shaped cup to enhance the flavor experience, provide ample space for creative garnishes, keep the drink cold for longer, and offer an elegant presentation – qualities that have made this style of serving popular in bars and restaurants worldwide.

Bloom

Lisa Hilland

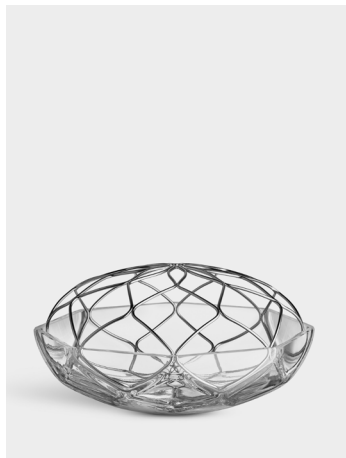

Bloom

Lisa Hilland

Bloom was born from a question: Can a vase be equally beautiful with or without flowers? Designer Lisa Hilland looked to geometry in nature for a shape that could combine simplicity with detail. The glass moves with suppleness toward the removable metal top. Both pieces reflect light, but in entirely different ways. The grid of the top also serves a purpose, if you want to place flowers inside Bloom: it allows you to shape your arrangements. You can even place a single plant in it, for an understated Scandinavian look. The series was launched in 2018.

Carat City Stoppers

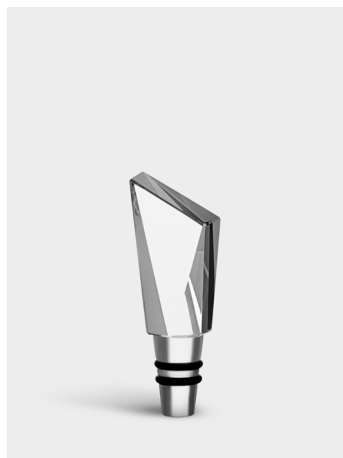

Lena Bergström

The New York wine stopper is part of the Carat City Stopper collection from Orrefors. The design is inspired by New York's famous Art Deco Chrysler Building. The conical bottom of the wine stopper is circled with rubber, allowing it to fit most bottles. Designed by Lena Bergström.

Cirrus

Anne Nilsson

Cirrus

Anne Nilsson

Each Cirrus candlestick weighs more than one kilogram (upwards of two pounds), thanks to the massive base. The weight is an homage to glass as a raw material, but also a result of wanting to make something as majestic as a candelabra, with only a single candle. Cirrus has a minimalistic shape, with its character coming from the materials - an interplay between transparency, matte and glossy finishes. The frosted interior of the base transitions into a completely clear stem, leading to a stainless-steel candleholder. Cirrus was launched in 2020.

Martti Rytönen

City

Martti Rytönen

Finding the right glass for a drink – the experience of drinking it – truly has the power to make the moment. Especially if the glass is from Orrefors. Like Martti Rytönen's series City. The lined pattern draws inspiration from the bright lights of the metropolis, bouncing off the façades along the skyline. City evokes the cosmopolitan mood that completes your favorite drink, whether you're on a remote island or on a rooftop bar surrounded by skyscrapers. The series was launched in 2016.

Cut in Number

Ingegerd Råman

Cut in Number

Ingegerd Råman

When creating Cut In Number, Ingegerd Råman applied Orrefors' extensive tradition of cut glass as a starting point – then took it in a new direction. While tradition calls for polished cuts, the cuts were instead left matte. The effect is a sharp emphasis on the geometrical pattern formed in the clear glass.

Cut In Number consists of four cylindrical objects: two bowls and two vases, all of which come with two different cut patterns, i.e. eight pieces in total. When the light meets the crystal and its geometric lines, it's evident that mathematics also possesses a poetic dimension. The collection was launched in 2021.

Difference

Erika Lagerbielke

Difference

Erika Lagerbielke

When Difference was introduced, it was clear that this new collection had been designed with a fresh, unique perspective for the eyes. Here, the flavor experience is as essential as the enjoyment for the eye and hand. Erika Lagerbielke consulted one of Sweden's leading sommeliers, Bengt-Göran Kronstam, for expertise and insights. Together, they explored the relationship between the shape of the glass and the experience of the flavor, aroma and color of the drink inside. The glasses in the Difference collection are based not on the grape from which the wine is made, but on the characteristics of the drink: Crisp, Fruit, Mature, Primeur, Rich, Sparkling and Sweet. This allows conversations over a Difference glass to be less about preconceived notions – and more about what is most important: your wine-tasting experience. The collection launched in 2002.

Discus

Lars Hellsten

Discus brings out the essence of crystal. The thick shape underscores the weight of the material, while the subtle pattern on the underside refracts the candle's glow, making it sparkle around each candle holder like moving reflections on the water surface. Discus is available in two sizes. The collection, which is designed by Lars Hellsten, launched in 1995.

The multidisciplinary architecture and design trio Claesson Koivisto Rune has spent a great deal of time in Japan. Based on the relationship between designer and producer, Orrefors and Claesson Koivisto Rune asked the question: Why instruct a glassblower to make each item identical? The Ebon vase shows that glass is a soft, glowing mass whose mobility slowly lessens as the temperature falls. Each vase is allowed to set into its own shape with the finishing touch applied by the glassblower. The result is a beautiful marriage between a strict framework and true individual execution. The collection was launched in 2020.

Elixir

Orrefors

Elixir by Orrefors was designed in 1969. It is mouth-blown and has the classic shape of the cup often preferred by wine tasters, which brilliantly brings out the aroma. As Elixir is also relatively small, the glass does not require a large pour of wine in order to best bring out the character of the drink.

Enjoy

Erika Lagerbielke

Enjoy is a solitary piece created to pair with your favorite glasses. It comes in two sizes with a shared aesthetic, but different areas of use. The lower one, with a spacious body, is an ideal carafe for decanting. Fill it with a bottle of wine, and the surface will just reach the widest point of the carafe. As such the contact area is maximized, to optimize aeration. The taller, narrow style is intended for water and other beverages. The collection is designed by Erika Lagerbielke and launched in 2014.

Ensemble from Orrefors is a series of two-part vases/containers from acclaimed British designer Benjamin Hubert. With a toned-down color scheme and minimalistic lines, they bring out the best in any flower constellation. That said, they can also serve as exquisite containers in a more general sense. Since the individual parts are interchangeable, you can choose exactly how to group and shape your Ensemble, inside and out.

Gin & Tonic

Orrefors

Orrefors Gin & Tonic is inspired by Barcelona. Unlike the American tradition, where gin and tonics are served in a highball glass, bartenders in Barcelona often serve this popular drink in a glass with a large bowl. This provides plenty of room for both ice and garnishes, like rosemary or black pepper. The size and shape of the glass are also important for both the aroma and flavor: the bubbles in the drink serve as “aroma transporters”. The large surface of Orrefors Gin & Tonic simply provides space for more bubbles, resulting in an unusually nuanced taste experience. The collection was launched in 2018.

Grace

Erika Lagerbielke

With Grace from Orrefors, Erika Lagerbielke demonstrates that even barware can have a light, gracious character. Its thin rim is similar to that of a wine glass, and its signature double-cone shape provides a perfect grip for the hand. The collection consists of an Old Fashioned glass, a Double Old Fashioned glass and a Highball glass. They are perfect for traditional alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages or contemporary cocktails and aperitifs with intriguing taste experiences of fruit juice, flavored tonics, herbs and other non alcoholic ingredients. The collection launched in 2022.

Helena

Gunnar Cyrén

The Helena champagne glass demonstrates how technique and design are closely connected in the world of Orrefors. The glassblower twists the glass in the mold to create a diagonal line pattern on the surface. The height of the glass and the small base, bring an elegance perfectly matching that of the beverage that Helena was designed for. The collection has been part of Orrefors' assortment since 1977. Design by Gunnar Cyrén.

Ice Cube

Göran Wärff

Ice Cube by Orrefors demonstrates how a true master of the craft maximizes the fascinating yet simple nature of crystal glass. Göran Wärff has shown the unique refractive qualities of the crystal by shaping the glass into a massive cube. Sunlight and a gentle tea light won't be perceived the same, but are both equally beautiful with this votive. The collection launched in 2001.

Informal

Björn Dahlström

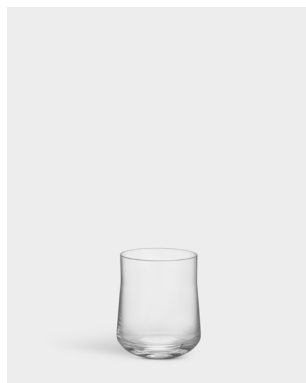

Informal

Björn Dahlström

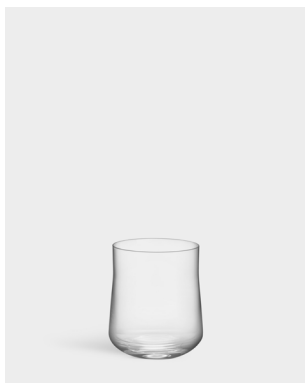

Informal is Björn Dahlström's first collaboration with Orrefors. The series includes every glass you need around the modern dining table, and is an innovative marriage between Sweden's beautiful, high-quality glass tradition and today's more informal social customs.

The seemingly simple shapes are in fact carefully considered down to the last detail. The glasses are a delight to hold and help to bring out the nuances of fragrance and flavor in drinks without placing them front and center. The same elegant balance of form and function is perfectly demonstrated by the multiple usage of the clever bowl delivered with the carafe. It can be used as a practical coaster for the carafe, or to serve olives or appetizers. The collection was launched in 2021.

Intermezzo

Erika Lagerbielke

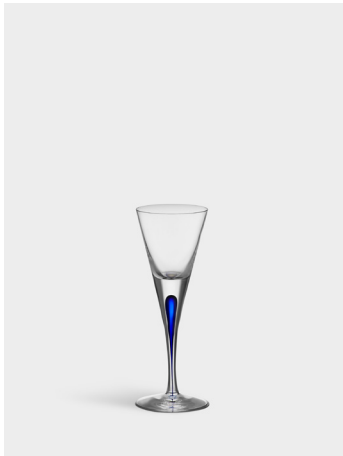

Intermezzo

Erika Lagerbielke

Erika Lagerbielke created a classic the year after she graduated from the University of Arts, Crafts & Design (Konstfack) in 1984. At that time, Intermezzo broke away from the colorless aesthetic that had been established in Sweden in the 1950s. Here was someone who wanted to make glass visible and fun, to allow it to be a statement-making element of a table setting. Instead of stepping away from Orrefors' legacy of beauty and tradition of craftsmanship, Lagerbielke took them both a step further. Intermezzo's wine glasses, drinking glasses and carafe, which are all still mouth-blown in Småland, were at the time more sensual than those of past generations. And sealed into the glass, rising up from the surface of the table, is a teardrop-shaped mystery. A small, but characteristic detail fascinating enough to inspire a conversation at any time. It has been doing just that for decades – Intermezzo is aesthetic sustainability personified.

Intermezzo Gold

Erika Lagerbielke

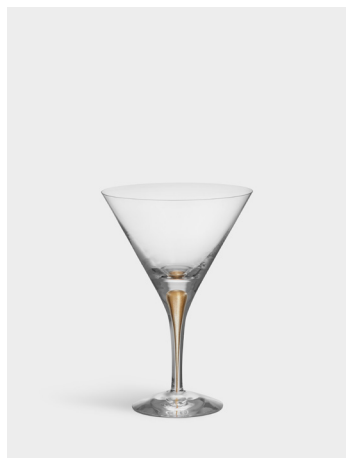

Intermezzo Gold

Erika Lagerbielke

Our craftsmen and Erika Lagerbielke have shared a long-standing ambition to fill Intermezzo's characteristic bubble with gold coloring (instead of the traditional blue). Only now have they succeeded – they're all perfectionists – but it was definitely worth the wait. Encased in the crystal-clear glass is now a matte drop shimmering like gold. Fittingly, the inception of Intermezzo Gold coincides with no less than three Orrefors' anniversaries: 125 years in Sweden, 100 years in the US and 40 years of collaboration with Erika Lagerbielke.

Intermezzo Gold includes a selection of glasses from the series: Three wine glasses, three bar glasses, a water glass and a carafe, and, last but not least, the champagne glass – a favourite of the designer herself. Now with a golden drop that shines enough to compete with anything you pour on top of it.

Legend

Orrefors

The Legend series is based on the grinding technology developed by Orrefors during the first half of the 20th century. Here is the deep sanding groove which, in combination with a tight, modern pattern, gives the distinct character. Facets are formed in the strong crystal ware that beautifully refract the light. Orrefors Legend is available in two sizes, both beautiful enough to just look at - and of course perfect for snacks.

Lumiere

Ingegerd Råman

When renowned Swedish designer Ingegerd Råman studied in Italy she was particularly attracted to studying flowers and candles which came to serve as a strong source of inspiration for what has become her hallmark: designs where all that is superfluous is removed, enabling a full focus on material and form.

Lumiere by Ingegerd Råman is no exception. A series of candlesticks where the crystal-clear transparency of glass and the mirror-like metal are united in a shape that is equally minimalistic and striking. Lumiere was launched in 2021.

Magica

Andreas Engesvik

The Magica series is the result of a collaboration between Orrefors and Norwegian designer Andreas Engesvik. The series consists of four votives and connects old and new strains of Scandinavian design in a captivating expression.

Besides including Scandi-classic shapes like the super ellipse and super circle, Magica uses shading and textured glass to achieve ambience-adding light diffraction and patterns.

Merlot

Erika Lagerbielke

Merlot by Erika Lagerbielke was introduced in 1995. The objective of Merlot was to offer a tableware series that elevate the taste experience without specifically being intended for wine connoisseurs. The collection received the Excellent Swedish Design award in its first year. In line with Orrefors' rich history, Merlot represents classic, finely crafted glass in an understated Scandinavian design in the spirit of less is more. This invisible quality may very well mean that your Merlot glasses will never need to be recycled – simply use and take pleasure in them time and time again, to trigger your own sustainable closed-loop initiative.

Edition II

Metropol

Erika Lagerbielke

With the austere and elegant Metropol, Erika Lagerbielke continues in her own footsteps, from her breakthrough with Intermezzo and into the future. It has the same intriguing mystery that we know from Intermezzo - the sealed drop of color- but paired with another approach to color and style. The straight lines, like the name Metropol, bring modern city living to mind. Metropol includes glasses for champagne, red and white wine and beer. There is also a coupe, tumbler and a carafe which works equally well for water and wine. The series was launched in 2017.

Metropol

Erika Lagerbielke

With the austere and elegant Metropol, Erika Lagerbielke continues in her own footsteps, from her breakthrough with Intermezzo and into the future. It has the same intriguing mystery that we know from Intermezzo - the sealed drop of color- but paired with another approach to color and style. The straight lines, like the name Metropol, bring modern city living to mind. Metropol includes glasses for champagne, red and white wine and beer. There is also a coupe, tumbler and a carafe which works equally well for water and wine. The series was launched in 2017.

Midsummer

Claesson Koivisto Rune

Midsummer may well be the most appreciated holiday in Sweden, with celebrations dating back to the Middle Ages. A fond custom dictates picking seven kinds of flowers and placing them under your pillow on Midsummer's Eve. The magic powers of the twilight night will then reveal your future partner in your dreams.

Seeing the importance of the holiday, renowned designer trio Claesson Koivisto Rune and Orrefors have teamed up to create a series of seven mini vases, inspired by and named after as many meadow flowers. While each of the seven vases has its own distinct character, they are also designed to group brilliantly, with one complementing the other.

Mingus

Vicke Lindstrand

Mingus

Vicke Lindstrand

Vicke Lindstrand's Mingus is a Swedish glass icon. It was designed for Orrefors in 1934 and has been mouth-blown here in Småland ever since. Mingus was launched as a martini pitcher, but is used just as often for ice water and other cold drinks. The pitcher has won numerous design awards and often represents Swedish glass design at national and international museums.

Erika Lagerbielke

More started as a restaurant series. By interviewing restaurateurs about everything from form to function, Erika Lagerbielke was able to create a series that today is as appreciated in star restaurants as it is for home gatherings and family dinners. Representative for all parts in the More series – from wine and champagne glasses to the versatile multitumbler – is Lagerbielke's ability to combine the elegance of premium tableware with functionality, reflecting how people socialize, eat and drink today: relaxed, inclusive and pleasant. The series was first launched in 2013.

Nobel

Gunnar Cyrén

Gunnar Cyrén is one of the great designers in Swedish glass history. In 1991, he created this set, which is still used at the annual Nobel Banquet at Stockholm City Hall – an unparalleled gala where invited laureates from around the world celebrate with over 1,000 guests, including members of the Swedish royal family, prestigious politicians, scientists and artists. The collection, which is mouth-blown in Sweden and hand-painted with details in real 21 carat gold, includes wine glasses, beer glasses, champagne glasses, a pitcher and a carafe. The entire Nobel set is now a highly coveted collectors' item, in both Sweden and internationally.

Orrefors x Björn Frantzén

Orrefors

In a collaboration between Orrefors and the sommeliers of three-star chef Björn Frantzén, we present the namesake series Orrefors x Björn Frantzén. This pinnacle tableware series is specifically designed and developed to meet the exceptional standards of both form and function addressing world-class and aspiring dining alike.

To accommodate demand and make the product offering more suitable and versatile in a wider context, the series comes in two different executions. One machine-made version that is thin and light, suitable for daily use both at home and at restaurants, and one mouth-blown version, "Handmade Edition", where Orrefors has taken the lightness aspect even further by making the glass exceptionally thin. Both versions are presented in a well-balanced timeless Orrefors design where the height and stem length line up to create a clear sense of connection. Each execution features six types of glasses for inspired world-class dining experiences.

Peak

Martti Rytönen

Having grown up in North Karelia, Martti Rytönen has an inescapable relationship with nature. In the Peak barware collection by Orrefors, he pairs the magnificent authority of mountain tops with the ability of cut glass. The collection includes Old Fashioned glasses in two sizes, a Highball glass, and coasters and straws in classic warm-toned metal. The collection launched in 2018.

Pluto

Lena Bergström

Pluto by Orrefors is mouth-blown and unmistakably Scandinavian. With its floating spherical shape, subdued colors and a metal finish, Lena Bergström has designed a series with a soft and minimalistic yet striking character. Not unlike its namesake orb, Pluto was introduced in 2018.

Pond

Ingegerd Råman

Centrifuged glass is significant to the history of Orrefors. With Pond, Ingegerd Råman has picked up this on tradition but with her own unique approach. Centrifuged glass traditionally has a circular shape, but here it is oval instead, while remaining as thin and strong as ever. When the dishes in different sizes are stacked on top of another, an image appears – one reminiscent of rings on the water after a pebble is cast. The collection was launched in 2021.

Pulse

Ingegerd Råman

With the series Pulse by Orrefors, Ingegerd Råman again shows her remarkable ability to achieve unique results through simplification. All Pulse glasses have a clean clear shape in common, as well as the characteristic curved bowl. There are wine glasses for every type of wine, including champagne, allowing for splendid table settings. The generous beer glass holds volumes of both drink and foam, and the tumbler elevates the simplest of beverages. The collection launched in 2013.

Raspberry

Anne Nilsson

Mineral water is water from a mineral spring that contains various minerals, such as salts and trace elements. Mineral water may usually be still or sparkling according to the presence or absence of added gases. Traditionally, mineral waters were used or consumed at their spring sources, often referred to as taking the waters or taking the cure, at places such as spas, baths, or resorts. The term spa was used for a place where the water was consumed and bathed in; both the water and the place were used primarily for bathing, therapeutics, or recreation; and well where the water was to be consumed. Today, it is far more common for mineral water to be bottled at the source for direct consumption. Travelling to the mineral water site for direct access to the water is no longer common, and in many cases not possible because of exclusive commercial ownership. There are more than 4,000 brands of mineral water commercially available worldwide. The term mineral water is colloquially used to mean any bottled water, including water or soda water, as opposed to tap water. The more calcium and magnesium ions that are dissolved in water, the harder it is said to be; water with few dissolved calcium and magnesium ions is described as being soft. The Food and Drug Administration classifies mineral water as water containing at least 250 parts per million total dissolved solids, originating from a geologically and physically protected underground water source. No minerals may be added to this water. The European Union, bottled water may be called mineral water when it is bottled at the source and has undergone no or minimal treatment. Permitted is the removal of iron, manganese, sulfur and arsenic through decontamination, filtration or treatment with ozone-enriched water. This treatment does not alter the composition of the water as regards to the dissolved minerals which give it its properties. No additions are permitted except for carbon dioxide, which may be added, removed or re-introduced by exclusively physical methods. No disinfection treatment is permitted, nor is the addition of any bacteriostatic agents.

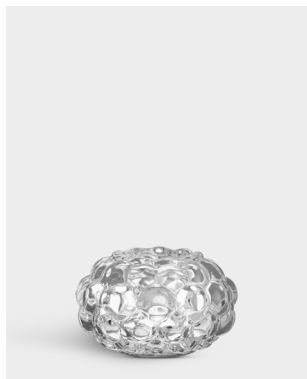

Raspberry

Anne Nilsson

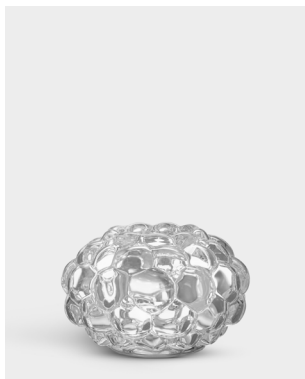

Raspberry in clear crystal glass by Orrefors is a series of bowls, vases, votive candle holders and a plate. Besides the name, it is evident where the inspiration for Raspberry's soft, bubbly contours comes from. The series was introduced in 1992. Design by Anne Nilsson.

Reed

Monica Förster

The vases in the Reed collection began as three-dimensional sketches in cardboard and paper, where Monica Förster showed how to bring character in the material by emphasizing its folds instead of hiding them. Transferred to glass, it gives a sense of organic movement. A quiet swaying in the hard glass. Reed by Orrefors is blown into a mold of clear or colored glass and is available in three different sizes. The large vase can be placed on the floor and in spacious rooms with large greens and florals, the medium size suits cut flowers, and a small one that is just right for tulips. A Red Dot Product Design winner, Reed was introduced in 2023 and is available in three colorways.

The Reed series by Orrefors began as three-dimensional sketches in cardboard and paper. Monica Förster's design work then proceeded to add character to the material by emphasizing its folds instead of hiding them. Transferred to glass, the result is a true sense of organic movement. A soft, swaying motion in the hard glass.

The acclaimed Reed program, including three mold-blown vases in three sizes, is now extended with the introduction of two new votives and a hurricane lamp.

Sense

Orrefors

Sense by Orrefors is an all-purpose glass for all sparkling wines and festive fizzy drinks. The classic tulip shape enhances both aroma and flavors. The curved center, subtle arch and tall finish add contemporary character to the design. Sense was introduced in 2015 and is made of the highest quality crystal glass.

Pia Törnell

Share is an all-purpose Carafe in two sizes where Pia Törnell combines modern elegance with a classic touch. It is stable yet sleek, with a comfortable neck to hold and a pour-friendly spout. The carafes are equally suitable for water and juice as they are to aerate and serve wine. Fittingly, the smaller size is perfect for a half bottle of wine, and the bigger one for a full bottle. The series by Orrefors was introduced in 2019.

Sofiero

Gunnar Cyrén

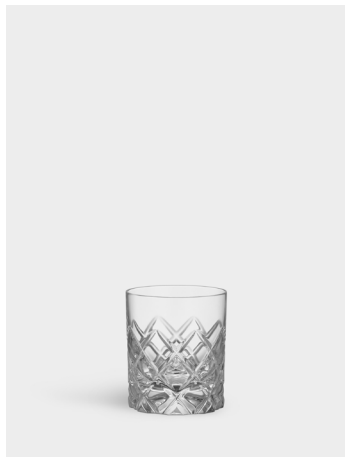

Sofiero

Gunnar Cyrén

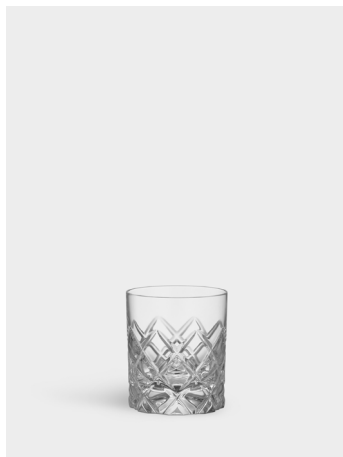

With Sofiero, Gunnar Cyrén created a lasting Scandinavian glass classic. The collection consists of bowls, a vase, a barware set of three glasses, and a decanter. Sofiero is characterized by its signature deep-cut pattern, which rises all the way to the edge of the vase and bowls, for an appearance reminiscent of a royal crown. Today, Sofiero's status as a classic is reinforced by its connection to the "For Zealous and Devoted Service of the Realm" award, where people who have worked for the Swedish government for more than 30 years stand to be awarded with an engraved Orrefors Sofiero bowl. The collection launched in 1960.

Squeeze

Lena Bergström

Squeeze

Lena Bergström

Like many other innovations, the idea for Squeeze arose by chance. While working on another shape entirely, Lena Bergström lost control of the sizzling, viscous glass, and the result was an asymmetrical inward bend. Inspired by her mistake, Bergström created Squeeze, intentionally reproducing its characteristic shape. The “squeezed” indentations interrupt the symmetry, while simultaneously serving a clear function: flowers placed inside are neatly held together rather than spread out, even those with only a few stems. The collection was first launched in 1997 and is available in multiple colors and sizes including the impressive new taller 500 mm version.

Street

Street

Jan Johansson

Manhattan is home to an enormous number of bars. Having a drink at rooftop bars, fine restaurants and neighborhood pubs has always been a natural part of life in the city. With the Street barware collection, Jan Johansson has merged Orrefors' Scandinavian design tradition with inspiration from New York's world-famous grid system of streets and avenues. The crisp purity of crystal permeates each glass, including options for champagne to cognac and – naturally – a dry martini. In addition, Street includes a decanter and ice bucket with black details to provide contrast to the clear glass. The collection launched in 2006.

The Snaps Devil

Gunnar Cyrén

Gunnar Cyrén is one of the great designers in Swedish glass history. In 1991, he created this set, which is still used at the annual Nobel Banquet at Stockholm City Hall – an unparalleled gala where invited laureates from around the world celebrate with over 1,000 guests, including members of the Swedish royal family, prestigious politicians, scientists and artists. The collection, which is mouth-blown in Sweden and hand-painted with details in real 21 carat gold, includes wine glasses, beer glasses, champagne glasses, a pitcher and a carafe. The entire Nobel set is now a highly coveted collectors' item, in both Sweden and internationally.

The Sparkling Devil

Gunnar Cyrén

After Gunnar Cyrén passed away in 2013, the designer's sons reviewed the sketches he had left behind. They found numerous sketches of a champagne glass inspired by the "Snaps Devil" glass. The champagne glass, called Sparkling Devil, went into production and is now part of the Orrefors assortment. The product is mouth-blown in Sweden and each glass is hand-painted with details in real 21 carat gold. The collection is available in several colorways and a unique new edition is added annually until the collection is complete.

Tou

Claesson Koivisto Rune

Tou, designed by Claesson Koivisto Rune and Orrefors, shows how an established function can take on a new form. Inspired by the classic hurricane lamp, the designers have divided Tou into two components: a foundation in thicker glass, and a tall, thin-glass cylinder placed inside. The different layers and thicknesses reflect the room and the candle flame in a way that makes the eye linger. Set the table with Tou both outdoors and indoors. The candles are easy to light when you lift off the top. And with the tall glass in place, the flame burns quietly, even in an evening breeze.

Tou is available in three sizes: a smaller one for regular tealights, a medium-size for large tealights and a large storm lantern for pillar candles or classic candles (a functional metal holder is included).

Valentino

Martti Rytönen

Valentino is a convergence of hard and soft elements. This thick, crystal-clear glass is shaped like a heart – the universal symbol of care, warmth and love. By also giving the heart a bulging shape, Martti Rytönen has made the glass almost appear to be pulsating. The votive holder has a round hole, allowing the candle to sink down at just the right level making the light visible through the glass, but still reaching up over the edge. The manufacturing technique of the bowl gives the inner edges a gently rounded look. Fill it with classic love letters written on paper, or with a little water and a few roses floating on the surface. The collection launched in 2010.
